In 1919, Frederick William Vanderbilt, one of america's wealthy families and perhaps one of the most influential men in the country, purchased oceanfront land in the exclusive Condado District of San Juan, Puerto Rico. He boasted designs on his behalf at Warren and Whitmore, one of the leading architectural firms of the time, New York's Biltmore, Commodore and Ambassador Hotels and Grand Central Station, the Condado Vanderbilt Hotel, caribbean.The early Spanish Revival-style architecture was proposed by Frederick William Vanderbilt himself. Taking great advantage of the property's breathtaking setting overlooking the Atlantic Ocean, the designers created an imposing structure with white walls, red chinas, French windows, sublime ceilings and other design details unique to the style at the time. Inside, the original sweeping stairs and elegant arches remain intact to this day. Condado Vanderbilt, an ultra-luxurious hotel from day one, shone with its beauty and splendor, not to mention the local elite envisioned by Mr. Vanderbilt. The hotel's distinguished guests included Charles Lindbergh, Carlos Gardel, Errol Flynn, Bob Hope, Arthur Rubinstein and President Franklin and Ms. Eleanor Roosevelt. Prestigious local events were booked in the only first-class hotel on the island at the time. The Queens of The Catholic Girls of America Ponce de León and San Juan Carnivals chose Condado Vanderbilt for their crowning balls. Te-Danzant, a coexere of English traditional tea insurmed with afternoon tea, dancing and local flavor, was a must for ladies of the institute society. For entertainment, Condado Vanderbilt offers live music at terraza del Hotel Condado, the oceanfront Pato del Fauno ballroom and the Fiesta Room. In the 1930s, bosses toasted a good life Garden, a small open-air pub with very own take on Germany's Oktoberfest.up, has stopped by a number of renovations to the Condado Vanderbilt Hotel. In 1950, 80 new rooms were added, as well as a new bar, cocktail lounge and café. In the 1970s, the splendor of the hotel began to fams and nearly collapsed, but was saved by an executive order from then Governor Luis A. Ferré. In the 1990s, the famous hotel closed its doors indefinitely. Architectural style comes and goes, but spectacular examples from each era remain; examples that deserve to be preserved and immortalized for their place in history, if not for their glory. The Condado Vanderbilt Hotel has always been such a place, but after decades of gentle decline, this saint was ready for a jewellery revival. At every stage of the latest renovation, he took meticulous care to maintain the standard of quality that characterized the hotel in the first century. Developers have gathered a team of experts in their field, demanding and getting excellence in every aspect. From the richly furnished surroundings to its unique cuisine and highly personalized service, the only standard that applies to Condado Vanderbilt is absolute excellence. Back in its original glory and welcoming guests once again, Condado Vanderbilt Hotel showcases two 11-story towers of 323 guest accommodations, including 80 Commodore Suites and 40 Biltmore Suites. Each floor is equipped with four of five diamond service butlers. In Puerto Rico, the legend has been reborn, and the promise of a bright future shines again for the Condado Vanderbilt Hotel - where it all began.
